

Kensington Scott

Our Story

I have always had a passion for kitchen fitting, I have over 30 years of experience in the industry. My passion started installing kitchens; I was also Gas and electric registered, as well as running my own kitchen fitting teams.

My philosophy has always been to offer more than “Putting pretty boxes against walls”. I firmly believe that the art of kitchen fitting is the planning and organisation from the get go, being able to undergo both simple and complex projects whilst making the experience as pleasant and stress-free for the client as possible. When I set up Kensington Scott in 2010, I wanted to create a company in which everybody in the company shared this ethos.

“ We have worked extremely hard on ways to make the Kensington Scott experience an affordable luxury

In 2016 my Son, Jamie joined the business, his fresh ideas and enthusiasm has allowed us to grow as a company whilst constantly improving our levels of service. Since this period, we have worked extremely hard on ways to make the Kensington Scott experience an affordable luxury for many people in the local area. Whether that be a £15,000 project or an £80,000 and above project, the level of service you will receive remains consistent. To this day, both myself and Jamie are heavily involved with projects, from planning stage through to installation. We are family run business; although we hold a strong work ethic which allows us to make constant improvements to our business and service, we still strongly believe in maintaining a welcoming, personal approach that is expected in a family run independent business. From the moment you walk into our Kensington Scott showroom, you will be greeted by our knowledgeable, friendly team who will be able to take you on the journey of creating your dream kitchen, with very little stress.

We differ ourselves from many kitchen companies in many ways, one of these is that Kensington Scott prides itself on having set project teams, this means that all our trades are ours, whether that be a kitchen fitter, a plumber, electrician, flooring expert or plasterers – we have our own team that is organised by us. This decision has meant we have been able to organise the trades, providing the client with a weekly schedule of who will be coming and going on a day to day basis. The other advantage of having a team that works regularly together is that the communication is kept to a maximum, whether this be an unexpected occurrence, or the transition from one trade to the next, each trade has been trained on how to leave their job, so that the next trade coming in can complete their work seamlessly.

I am extremely proud of the ever growing Kensington Scott brand, which has consistently provided the local area with high quality kitchens. I look forward to welcoming you into the showroom and starting your Kensington Scott experience very soon...

What we do

When considering a kitchen project, this process can feel daunting and confusing. At Kensington Scott we aim to make this process as straightforward and enjoyable as possible, whilst maintaining the underlying goal of creating a project you can fall in love with, in addition to offering our expert advice throughout all fields along the way. Generally this will start in the showroom or over the phone where our friendly team can identify the best way to start the process.

Within your design meeting, our expertly trained designer will go through each individual unit and explain why they have designed your kitchen a certain way, going through both the aesthetic features as well as how it has been ergonomically designed to ensure using your kitchen going forward is as easy as possible for your lifestyle.

The evolution of the kitchen is something that has fascinated us here at Kensington Scott, we no longer live in a world where a kitchen is purely for cooking. Our kitchens often become the hub of the home and living spaces in which interaction between friends and family can enjoy for years to come.

Whether you are trying to achieve a country, shaker style, or a gloss sleek looking kitchen, our passionate, expert designers are here to help make your vision a reality.

We do more than just kitchens...

At Kensington Scott, we understand that interior or exterior projects involve so much more than just the kitchen. Kensington Scott have a dedicated building team, meaning we can undertake building projects of all sizes, all under the same roof.

We have spent the past years perfecting our teams, so that we have experts in each of their fields.

Whether you need, a building expert, electrician, plumber, flooring expert, decorator – we have them all in house at Kensington Scott.

We understand that building or interior projects can seem to have so many variables. This is why we have worked diligently to negotiate some of the best terms with some of the leading suppliers, meaning in turn we can pass this onto you, as our client, to offer competitive prices on your project. Whether that be bi-folds, windows, front doors or steel works, we work closely with our partners and with this, you can be sure that the quality has been Kensington Scott approved.

Our Kitchens

Kensington Scott made the conscious decision to hand-pick their suppliers as opposed to having a huge supplier list. Their partners have been based on three key categories deemed essential by the Kensington Scott team. They offer a high level of quality, an efficient and friendly after care team and value for money at a high quality. Mark Cutts (owner of Kensington Scott) chose to partner with Mereway as a kitchen supplier as they also share similar values to us. The attention to detail for each individual order is what we feel to be the highest in its field. The owners of Mereway, have kitchen fitting backgrounds themselves, which in turn enables their methodical thinking behind each cabinet and door. There are a wide range of different styles and colours, and even materials which all can be tailored to the client and their property. Although we use Mereway as our kitchen manufacture, if a cabinet or door needs to be increased in height, depth or width this is never an issue with Kensington Scott also being able to undertake more complex bespoke projects or cabinets. Throughout the different ranges you can discover everything from the ultra-modern high gloss, to a more subtle matte or satin finish door, or a far more traditional solid Oak or Ash shaker style door. All of our colour pallets have been chosen by experts in their fields to ensure the colours are current, and in trend. Because both the door and the cabinet are crafted by the same manufacture we able to offer colour matching cabinetry on our doors.

Our Partners

Kensington Scott

At Kensington Scott, we have selected companies that share a similar ethos to us. This means you can guarantee a high level of quality, value for money and a proven, consistent level of after-care service. We work incredibly closely with all our partners, this means our relationship with all is a personal one. This enables us to pass some of the best terms in the market on to you, as a client. This also means that on the small chance there are any unfortunate circumstances, these can be rectified as quick as possible, for you as the client, our goal is to create your new living space as quickly and as stress free as possible. Our appliance partners are Bosch, Neff and Siemens (The BSH Group) all three companies are under one umbrella. Kensington Scott are proud to be 5* Master partners of these brands. The BSH group are passionate about appliance in the home and insist that all our staff go on regular training course, as well as us having live appliances in the showroom. So, whether you want to see the Neff Slide & Hide oven in action or let us show you a cooking demonstration on one of our vented hobs you can touch, feel and use any potential appliances you are considering, before you purchase them!

Despite being one of the most frequently used items in the kitchen, sinks and taps are often overlooked as part of the kitchen project. To take the stress away, Kensington Scott work closely with three of the best Sink & Tap manufacturers on the market. Blanco, Franke and Perrin & Rowe all offer a wide selection of sinks and taps from a traditional butler style sink, to a spray hose tap. Whether you chose something minimalist and simple or a more bespoke tailored option, our expert team will be able to guide you to what selection we feel will best suited to your lifestyle and design.

Kensington Scott are proud to give advice across all building and kitchen installation and have key suppliers from kitchen and beyond that we are happy for our expert team to help you with any decisions.

Whether that be a bi-fold door or window manufacture, to a water softener or boiling tap. We have worked relentlessly to negotiate some of the best terms, that allow us to be incredibly competitive within each field, which in turn is passed onto you.
